The Civil War was the defining experience in the development of the United States. No event directly affected a greater proportion of the nation's population: about 10% of Americans fought in the war and more than 700,000 sacrificed their lives. The country continues to struggle with the issues of race, civil rights, the politics of federalism and the heritage that are legacies of the Civil War and Reconstruction. Thousands of regimental histories and personal narratives about the war have been published – often by private presses or state governments – but most were never widely distributed. Fragile, un-indexed and scattered, these records have remained difficult for historians and genealogists to find and use.

Now, Archives Unbound delivers a remarkable collection of regimental histories and first-person accounts. The Civil War in Words and Deeds makes available rare, original chronicles of army life in the most devastating conflict in U.S. history. Genealogists and students of military history, Southern history, literature and American studies will find an unmatched depth of personal insight: the reasons individuals volunteered, the wonderment of leaving home, the excitement of initially going to the front, the clash of arms, the drudgery of camp life, the boredom of garrison duty and the anguish of imprisonment are expounded in these accounts. Attitudes toward officers and fellow soldiers, the enemy and the political questions of the war are recorded with a richness that brings new credibility and perspective to scholarly research.

Free trial
Try this and other Archives Unbound collections free. Visit www.gale.com/ArchivesUnbound or contact your Gale Representative at 1-800-877-GALE.
Individually and collectively, original Civil War monographs constitute a source of great historical value. This collection of histories and personal narratives, compiled primarily between the end of the war and 1920, chronicles the highs and lows of army life from 1861 through 1865.

Monographs include:
- Reminiscences of the Nineteenth Massachusetts regiment
- War diary of Rodney W. Torrey, 1862-1863
- History of the 99th Indiana Infantry: containing a diary of marches, incidents, biography of officers and complete rolls
- A Texan in search of a fight: the diary and letters of a private soldier in Hood's Texas brigade
- From a New England woman's diary in Dixie in 1865
- Guide to Richmond and the battlefields
- The South: a tour of its battlefields and ruined cities, a journey through the desolated states, and talks with the people
- Dedicating in Dixie: a series of articles descriptive of the tour of Governor Albert B. Cummins and staff, the members of the Vicksburg, Andersonville, Chattanooga and Shiloh monument commissions and invited guests, through the South for the purpose of dedicating Iowa memorials on southern battlefields and cemeteries, November 12th to November 25th, 1906
- The campaigns of Walker's Texas Division: containing a complete record of the campaigns in Texas, Louisiana, and Arkansas, including the Federal's report of the battles, names of the officers of the division, diary of marches, camp scenery, anecdotes
- History of Kershaw's brigade: with complete roll of companies, biographical sketches, incidents, anecdotes, etc
- Our regiment: a history of the 102d Illinois infantry volunteers: with sketches of the Atlanta campaign, the Georgia raid, and the campaign of the Carolinas