NEW EDITION The all-new International Encyclopedia of the Social Sciences, 2nd Edition, is the successor to Macmillan Reference USA's Encyclopedia of the Social Sciences (1935) and the first edition of the International Encyclopedia of the Social Sciences (1968) — two landmark references that “established standards for knowledge in social science research and practice” (CHOICE, 2001). This entirely new second edition expands the scope of the original, covering scholarship and fields that have emerged and matured since its initial publication.

With nearly 3,000 new articles contributed by thousands of international scholars and several Nobel Prize winners, including Roger B. Myerson, 2007 co-winner of the Nobel Prize in economics, this new edition is essential to research and study in the disciplines of sociology, political science, economics, anthropology, psychology and other fields. A wide array of topics are explored, including:

- Achievement testing
- Aging
- Agricultural Innovation

Encyclopedia of Race & Racism

 NEWTITLE The Encyclopedia of Race & Racism is the first such work examining the anthropological, sociological, historical, economic and scientific theories of race and racism in the modern era.

The set delves into the historic origins of ideas of race and racism and explores their social and scientific consequences. Some of the nearly 400 articles address broad theoretical topics that have helped to shape modern ideas about race and racism; others address more specific subjects in the larger fields of economics and social justice. The set includes biographies of dozens of significant theorists, as well as political and social leaders and notorious racists.

Encyclopedia of Sex & Gender

 NEW TITLE Encyclopedia of Sex & Gender encompasses the various concepts of sex and gender that have arisen from critical study worldwide, as well as the emerging reimagining of the more traditional humanities and social sciences. Broad theoretical essays address issues of sex and gender at the personal and the social level; others examine issues of identity, status, class, ethnicity, race and nation; of sexuality and the body; of social institutions and the structures of representation — all through the lens of gender. With a truly global perspective, topics of individual entries include changing conceptions of “the feminine,” the family and masculinity, religion, morality, cultural images, medical practice, public health, economy and society and many more.
